CLARENCE DALY WRITES LETTER

Clarence Daly, son of W. C. Daly, of this place has arrived in Los Angeles, California, where he has a position with the Western Electric Company. He made the trip by auto, driving through twelve states and being on the road four weeks and one day. The following letter from the young man will be of interest to many.

Somewhere in Idaho
Aug. 22, 1923

Dear Dad.

Still going strong. We have been through the Park and Everything. I guess I had better begin at the place where you heard from me last. That was Rapid City, South Dakota. We went from there to Deadwood which lies in the northern part of the Black Hills. The Black Hills were beautiful till we reached the big Rocky ones and them they decreased in my estimation. From Deadwood we drove as far as Gilette, Wyoming. It was just a small place but was on the plains with hardly a tree in sight but we made camp there. Talk about your New Jersey mosquitoes, they can't compare to the ones there.

The next day we made the longest run that we have had on the trip. We made this trip to Sheridan, Wy., by noon, this town is one of the prettiest that we have gone through. The irrigation of this section was interesting, as in some of the ditches the water apparently flows up hill. In order to avoid the Mountains we went to Billings, Mont. The distance from Gilette to Billings is about 270 miles and we made it in a little over 11 hours.

Billings had a wonderful Camping ground, showers and everything. A bath was sure welcome at this stage of the game as the Wyoming dust stuck to your face like glue.

The next morning we went west to Livingston, Mont. and from there into the Park. We did not get there till late so made camp at the Mammoth Hot Springs tourists Camp.

We camped right beside five Montana Cow Boys and got real well acquainted. We had a big Camp fire and they told some mighty good stories of fishing and hunting.

The next morning we started down the Park toward Old Faithful Camp. We stopped and climbed Roaring Mt., which has hot sulphur spring boiling out all over its face or side. We stopped several times along the upper basin to see the different pools. I can't remember all their names and it would be too much to write if I could. We arrived at the Lower Basin or Old Faithful Camp at a little before noon. We saw Old Faithful play once and then had dinner.

At the Camp we met a fellow who had been at the Grand Canion Glacier Park and all along the Pacific cost. He was traveling alone and had an old 1917 "Ark" that moaned every time he went over a bump. We got to talking to him and he had some information on some of the other geysers and wanted us to go with him. It is rather unfortunate that Rogsdale doesn't care for the things I do. He said that he had seen Old Faithful and the rest would all be the same so we didn't go.

First we went to the river side Geyser. It plays about every 6 or 7 hours. We had to wait about an hour before it erupted. I believe I got some good pictures of it in action. Then we hied ourselves to the Daisy. It was not as pretty as the River side but was well worth our time. Then we went to the Grand which was predicted to play any time from 3 till 3 o'clock. We were in luck as we only waited about 20 minutes and up she went. This was the largest we saw going up about 200 feet. It was very impressive as to height and quantity of water and steam.

We met three young ladies at the Grand and as we wanted to make a side trip off of the main road asked them if they cared to go. They were more than willing and we saw some very impressive sights indeed. One that impressed me a great deal was Buffalo pool. At one time a Buffalo had fallen in and you can still see a jaw bone and one or two others. This side trip is something

DR. McALPIN HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT IN OHIO MONDAY

Word was received here early yesterday morning of an automobile accident in Port Clinton, Ohio, Monday in which Dr. Archie McAlpin of No. 63 Amm street was injured. He is now in a Port Clinton hospital suffering from two broken ribs and bruises. At a late hour last night his condition was reported improved.

Dr. McAlpin's brother, Dr. Victor McAlpin of Warren, is in Port Clinton having accompanied his brother on a vacation trip to Camp Perry, O., where they witnessed the shoots conducted over the rifle range. They were to have motored to Cleveland to attend the national dental convention before returning home.

It is expected that Dr. McAlpin will recuperate sufficiently to return to Bradford the end of this week.—Era 12

DR. A. R. LIVERMORE ATTENDED AMERICAN DENTAL ASSOCIATION

Dr. A. R. Livermore one of Smethport's able dentists was in Cleveland last week to attend the Annual American Dental Association meeting.

He reports a very inspiring meeting, there were 15,000 dentists present, and 1500 lectures, clinics and exhibits. The general sessions were held in the Sleveland Public Auditorium which seats 12,500 people, and lectures were held in hotels throughout the city.

These lectures were solely for the members of the Association, and no one else was admitted.

The public would be surprised to learn what enormous strides the dental profession has taken.

INVESTIGATION OPENED BY COUNTY DETECTIVE

Investigation by the county authorities of the alleged unlawful registration of voters in Bradford got under way yesterday when several persons believed to have been implicated in the alleged shady machinations designed to produce votes for certain candidates were questioned by County Detective J. J. Allison.

Prosecution of the investigation until the alleged scandal is cleared and those involved, if any, punished.

In spite of the alleged frantic effort of relatives and friends of a certain political aspirant believed to have been the principal involved in the free distribution of tax receipts to get back possession of the receipts given away, it is believed that a few are still in circulation.

Other abuses of the election and citizenship laws have been discovered it is claimed, and all cases will be investigated thoroughly by the authorities now handing the inquiry into the illegal practices called to public notice as the result of a private investigation made by The Era.—Era, 19.

PARKER CRAMER OUT TO BEAT NON-STOP RECORD Fails in First attempt

Lieut. Parker D. Cramer, formerly of Bradford, whose daring exploits in the air have been witnessed here, is out to beat the non-stop record for airmen set by Scotty Crocker. The failure of Cramer's first attempt is told in the following Associated Press dispatch received last night by the Era:

Houston, Tex., Sept. 13—The initial attempt of Parker D. Cramer Ellington Field aviator, to break the non-stop record of Lieut. Scotty Crocker, failed this morning when the propeller of his machine became entangled in weeds as he was taking off and disabled the ship.

Cramer took off at 6:14 a. m. for Clarion, Pa. The plane was forced to land about three miles out. A definite date for a new start of the flight has not been set, but Cramer expects to have a new propeller within the next week.

Parker Cramer is well known here where his mother Mrs. Fanny D. Cramer of Bradford formerly resided.

CAREY WINNER FOR COUNTY TREASURER

BARTON FOR SHERIFF HALPENNY AND BOND FOR COMMISSIONERS

COUNTY RETURNS INCOMPLETE AT THIS WRITING

The primary election is over as far as the casting of the ballots is concerned. According to the latest official report Chas. M. Carey made the nomination for county treasurer in a close race against Dan Cooper, Joseph Robinson and Homer Chatley were 3rd and 4th.

E. R. Benson of Mt. Jewett was the successful Democrat nominee for county treasurer.

L. O. Barton was the successful candidate for sheriff, in a hard fight with his competitors.

John B. Edstman was the successful candidate for register of wills over Roy Engstrom, and Edgar Rhone of Bradford.

For county auditor Gallup and Tull seem to have been nominated with Grace Cooper but 25 votes in the rear.

In the Democratic race for county commissioner Joseph O'Connor the Democratic member of the present board is leading by a good majority and is certain to have a place on the ticket. The other place is in doubt, Wynn of Bradford and Hungiville, of Smethport are running neck and neck.

Michael O'Brien, police chief, received both Republican and Democratic nominations for High Constable and Constable.

Following is the local vote for the county offices in which contests occurred also the vote for some of the more important borough offices.

MAURICE BURDICK HOLDS LUCKY NUMBER

Maurice Burdick, son of Wade Burdick who has a position in the post office, was the lucky person who won the case of silverware Saturday evening at the Star Theater. The number 54.278 was the one which entitled the owner to the silverware, but as this had evidently been lost, a new lot of tickets were given out to all those present who had been saving their numbers. Then three numbers were drawn from a hat, and after three successive attempts the holder of the lucky number (183) was found and presented with the set of Community silver, a very handsome gift.

HENRIETTA DUMJOHN.

Henrietta Buck was born in Pinnan, Germany, April 3, 1849.

She was married in March 1872 to Julius Dumjohn and shortly after emigrated to America and finally settled in Clermont, Pa., in the spring of 1875 where she resided until the death of her husband a little over two years ago. Since then she has made her home in Smethport with her duaghter, Mrs. C. A. Witherow.

Five children were born to this union, two of whom died in early childhood. She is survived by three children, Herman E. Dumjohn of St. Marys, Pa., Wm. Dumjohn of Buffalo, N. Y., and Mrs. C. A. Witherow of Smethport, Penna, also two grandchildren, Zella Dumjohn of St. Marys, Pa., and Clinton Dumjohn of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Dumjohn was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran church and a member of Clermont Hive, L. O. T. M. She was a splendid woman of great usefulness in her home and her community, before her illness removed her from active duties. Her family and friends have suffered a great loss.

She died, September 13, after a lingering illness, aged seventy-six years.

The funeral was held in the Swedish Lutheran church in Clermont Sunday afternoon September 16th. Rev. Arthur Gregson of the Methodist Episcopal church of Smethport officiating.

BIRD TALK.

Walter Weiseman of Pittsburgh will give an illustrated bird talk at the Star Theater next Monday evening September 24th at 7:30. Tickets 25c and 50c. Benefit of the D. A. R.

SCARLET FEVER IN TOWN.

Scarlet fever has made its appearance in town this fall. Miss Harriet Jones, the second grade teacher is ill with it, also Mary McDermott a pupil in the fourth grade. These are the only cases at present, and it is hoped the dread disease may be stamped out before extending further.

The past two school years have been unhindered by any epidemic that would necessitate the closing of school.

The school building has been fumigated and every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

MRS. H. G. GERMAN SEES DEER ON NORWICH HILL.

As Mrs. H. G. German and sons Harold, Ronald and Junior were returning in their car from Emporium Sunday afternoon, on the Norwich hill, they saw a doe and tiny fawn in the road ahead of them. Neither the mother deer or the fawn appeared at all frightend and both crossed the road and dissappeared in the wood. The fawn was probably not over a week old. Many deer have been seen near here this fall, the animals have become very fearless and frequently come out in the open.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS LOOK DUBIOUS.

Prospects for a successful opening game with Kane High School at Kane, Sept. 29rh, are not very bright for the local High School according to Coaches Livermore and Choate. Eleven letter men have been lost from last years squad and the new high school students seem to lack "Spirit" or something for there are very few of them out.

Scott, a promising new backfield candidate is out with a broken collar bone which is another blow to the team. He could kick and pass better than any man on the squad. It looks as though Kohn, the veteran center would have to be moved to the backfield. Taken as a whole it is not a very good outlook for a team that has the schedule to go through that the local boys do.

SWEDISH MISSION CHURCH.

Next Sunday, September 23, Rev. Davidson from Renovo will speak in English both morning and evening in the Swedish Mission Church. All who are interested and especially the young people are cordially invited.

MARSH-HOWARD AND HOWARD-RAUGHT.

A pretty double wedding was solemnized Tuesday p. m. September 18th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burdick of 1001 Main street, when Milford Marsh of Rochester, N. Y., and Ethel Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard of Straight, Pa., and William C. Howard and Twila Raught, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Raught of Straight, Pa., were united in marriage, Rev. S. A. Renicks of the Baptist church of this place officiating.

Mr. Marsh has a responsible position with the Penna Ry. Co., at Rochester, N. Y., and Miss Howard who is a registered nurse, has been very successful in her practice.

The young couples left on the Pennsylvania railroad for an extended trip to Washington, D. C. and Points in Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will be at home in Rochester, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Howard at Straight, Pa., after October 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Jarrett and daughter of Straights, Pa., were present at the wedding.

The Miner extends its hearty congratulations.

BASE BALL GAME NEXT SUNDAY

There will be a base ball game next Sunday at 3:30 p. m. at the local field, between the Smethport nine and the Savages of Olean.

Harold Peeler of Montreal, the famous catcher will be in the line up.

ARTHUR NESS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Arthur Ness of No. 609 Water street, was injured in an automobile accident on the state road between Coleville and Farmers Valley Friday night at 10:30 o'clock. He sustained a bad injury to the leg and cuts around the face when the machine in which he was riding turned completely over.

The accident occured when an Oakland sedan, being driven toward Bradford by G. Sheldon of Grimsby was sideswiped by a Paige touring car, proceeding in the direction of Smethport and driven by E. Britton of Backus. The impact of the collision turned the Paige completely over, Ness being thrown from the car. Other occupants of the two machines were only slightly injured.

A passing motorist rushed Ness to Smethport where he was attended by Dr. Ostrander. Stills ambulance was summoned from Bradford and conveyed the injured man to the Bradford hospital where Dr. W. C. Hogan is in attendance.

It was found that his leg was broken, at present the injured man is resting comfortably.

BLAZING CROSS ON BRENNAN HILL

A blazing cross 20 feet in height blazed for some time Monday evening between 9:0 0'clock and 11:00. The fiery emblem was plainly visible from Main street and many people watched it.

Several venturesome ones climbed the hill and examined it. They found a large wooden cross with rags soaked in kerosene wired around it, also the empty keg from which the kerosine had been taken.

Whether the burning of the cross is the work of the Ku Klux Klan or that of some excitement-loving young bloods, is a matter of conjecture.

Stories are going the rounds of several autoes filed with white-robed figure stopping near where the cross was lighted Monday evening, and of Ku Klux Literature found near the burned cross, but these cannot be vouched for. If it was the work of the Ku Klux Klan their motive remains a mystery.

M. E. CHURCH

Sunday, September 23. Morning Worship, 10:30; subject: "Having A Conscience Toward Others."

Church School, 11:45; Evening Worship, 7:30. Ladies Aid, Thursday, 2:30; Priscilla Club, Friday, 8:00. Refuse to measure Sunday by its pleasures; measure it by its privileges and duties. Not to go to church is to let what one likes to do master what one ought to do.

COUNTY CATTLE & HORSE EXHIBIT AT COUNTY FAIR

Last Friday the McKean County Fair Association paid out $1843.55 in premiums to the exhibitors. This is the largest sum ever paid by the Association. Ten of the eleven banks of the County donated $350. toward special premiums. The winners of the bank money were: W. J. Hall, of Port Allegany, $50. for the best cow and $25. for the best heifer calf; Worth Smith, of Keating Township, $50. for the best bull in the County; Geo. Parker, of Keating Township, $25 for the best bull calf; Chas. Seyler, of Port Allegany, $05 for the best team of draft horses; and Wm. Leet, of Turtle Point, $50 for the best stallion; W. E. Wilcox, of Crosby, $25 for the best pure bred ram and $25 for the best pure bred ewe; Harry German, of Smethport, $10. for the best pen in the poultry department of white leghorn chickens; Leonard Olson won $25. for the highest score in the judging contest, and Ralph Mitchell, of Port Allegany, $15. for the next highest score.

The livestock exhibit held in connection with the 1923 McKean County Fair at Smethport, during the week of Sept. 11th, successfully demonstrated the vivid interest displayed by McKean County Farmers in well-bred farm animals.

The exhibit this year surpassed by a great majority the annual display of former years, not only in the number of farmers presenting cattle for exhibition, but also in the number of cattle exhibited. This year's display contained, a total of 96 cattle, or three times more than the 1922 cattle exhibit. Horses totaling four times the number entered for display last year. The sheep exhibit of 40 head, far surpassed showings in this department. The exceeding interest shown in better livestock is easily perceived in the fact that over five times the number of farmers entered livestock this year than on any former occasion, ranking McKean County's Fair in entrants and stock offered as among the foremost of County Fairs in Pennsylvania.

Banks Give Special Premiums.

The Fair Association prizes were this year greatly swelled by contributions from the ten leading banks of the County. McKean County Trust Co., Bradford, Commercial National Bank, Bradford, Bradford National Bank, Mt. Jewett National Bank, First National Bank of Port Allegany, Hamlin Bank and Trust Company, Smethport, Grange National Bank, Smethport, Kane Bank and Trust Company, Kane Trust and Savings Company, First National Bank of Kane. The sum of the prizes was fifteen hundred dollars, of which three hundred and fifty were special bank premiums. The Bankers, by this donation deserve unstinted praise and a great amount of credit for the exceeding interest, shown in the farm animals exhibit.

Special Prizes and Sweepstakes.

Sweepstakes and Bank Premiums were carried off by: Geo. L. Parker, $25 Bank Premium for bull calf; H. German, $10 Bank Premium for best pen of poultry; W. W. Smith, $10 Sweepstakes prize on Ayrshire bull and $50 bank premium; W. M. Leet, $10 sweepstakes on stallion and $50 Bank Premium; Walter I. Hall, $10 sweepstakes of Jersey cow and two special Bank premiums; Chas. Seyler, $50 Bank Premium for best draft team; L. W. Wilcox, two Bank premiums of $25 for best ram, $25 for best ewe.

You can wash those soft, artistic walls

SOAP and water take the place of redecorating when your walls are painted with Patton's Velumina. Dirt, dust and grime can't penetrate this famous oil flat wall paint. They can only adhere to the surface and are easily washed away.

Architects and interior decorators recommend Velumina highly. For it gives that rich, soft-toned simplicity that is so much in vogue to-day. This artistic, economical, long-service wall paint comes in white and sixteen attractive tones.

We have Velumina all ready for application on your walls. Also, we will be glad to advise with you in the selection of paints, varnishes and enamels for any purpose.

SOMETHING IN BLACK CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Garbed in midnight black and heavily veiled a strange figure promenaded the streets last night, according to reports given the Republican. The person, whether a man or a woman is not known, but her actions were so peculiar that Policeman Robinson was notified and he made a search that was fruitless in result. The woman or man seemed to pick Chase and Haines streets as the scene of her ramble last night, but did not molest or speak to anyone, although he, she or it, would have been called upon to give an account of themselves or itself if policeman had found the prowler. Thus another black mystery looms on the horizon of Kane's affairs.

Kane Rep. 15

CAR TURNED OVER ON WETMORE ROAD

Mrs. Roy Wolfe and son Griffin, age 16, Helen 6 years old, and baby Jack, two years old, of this city had a narrow escape from serious injury shortly before 5 o'clock last evening, when a Ford touring car, which Mrs. Wolfe was driving, turned turtle on the Wetmore road about 3 miles from Kane. Mrs. Wolfe and children had gone out for a ride early in the afternoon. Her son, Gordon was driving the car, on the way out and after they had driven several miles down the road and turned around to come home, Mrs. Wolfe, who is learning to drive, took the wheel. Things went along all right until they reached a point in the road where the car shot into the ditch, hit a good-sized rock and turned completely over. The occupants were all thrown out of the car and not one of them was even badly bruised. The front end of the car on the right side, was badly jammed, the windshield broken and the frame badly bent and the top completely demolished. The car was brought into Healy's garage for repairs.—Kane, Republican September 14.

BRADFORD AND STATE OFFICERS CONDUCT RAIDS

Six Places are Visited Regularily

Silvio Piazzoli and George Gunnels of No. 69 Chestnut street are in the cell block at police headquarters as the result of a series of raids on alleged hooch vending establishments made yesterday afternoon by local and state police. They were unable to furnish $2,000 bail imposed on each by Alderman Brooks following a hearing on charges of violating the prohibition laws.

The raid on the Piazzoli place was conducted by Chief of Police Solt and State Policeman Stacy. Gunnels was in charge of the premises when the officers arrived. Piazzoli owner was arrested later. Five gallons of alcobol and two gallons of whiskey, in bottles of different sizes, were found and confiscated.

Five Other Places Visited

Five other places were raided simultaneously with the Piazzoli house by other raiding parties. Only one, Dominick Maduri of No. 31 Barbour street was arrested, two cases of alleged beer being found. The frothy beverage was taken and Maduro was released following a hearing pending an analysis of the liquid. Constable Spreter and two policemen made up the squad that visited the Maduri place.

County Detective J. J. Allison and a state policeman raided the establishments of Peter Leone and Mike Ross at Lewis Run but nothing incriminating was found.

The home of Peter Dunnel at No. 6 South Center street was visited by Captain John Peterson and two policemen. No liquor was found.

Officer Travis and two other officers raided the premises occupied by Antonio Sasso at No. 19 North Center street but found no evidence of infractions of the liquor laws.

The raids were well planned and timed. Information had been received by police of alleged sales of bootleg liquor at all places visited.

Dog on Guard

Before searching the Piazzoli place, the officers ordered Gunnels to tie a vicious German police dog which, it is claimed is kept on the premises as protection in cases of raids. The officers had been tipped off about the dog, however, and assured themselves that the beast was securely tied before venturing into the house. The diffidence displayed by Gunnels when ordered to tie the dog was easily overcome by the exhibition of a shooting iron properly loaded and in good working condition and the threat to kill the beast unless it was secured. WOMAN SENT TO HOSPITAL

Was Working Firing Mechanism With Admiration When Shell Exploded; Strikes Woman In Stomach.

Accidentally shot by her son at Mt. Jewett at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, Mrs. Harry W. Horam of Mt. Jewett, formerly of Kane, is in the Kane Summit hospital in a critical condition. She was shot through the stomach is the report.

The shooting was accidentally done by her son, Harry Horam, 18 years old, who is prostrated with grief over the terrible occurrence. He purchased a new .32 calibre rifle this morning and took it home where he loaded it and while admiring the new gun, worked the firing mechanism, his mother being within range of the bullet, which sped when the gun was accidently discharged by the boy.

With a scream the woman sank to the floor and the terror-stricken boy quickly summoned Dr. Cleveland of Mt. Jewett, who made the patient as comfortable as possible and accompanied her to the hospital here, where she arrived shortly before two o'clock.

At three o'clock reports from the hospital were that Mrs. Horam's condition was very serious, with the outcome in doubt.

The Horam family were former residents of Kane, moving to Mt. Jewett about five years ago. They have numerous friends here who are hoping Mrs. Horam's wound will not result fatally and are also sympathetic with the suffering of the rest of the family.—Kane, Republican, Sept. 12.

Mrs. Horan died Saturday the 15th at the Kane hospital.

LOCKED IN BOX CAR OVER NIGHT

He crawled in "Dead to World"

Robert Jackson, a woodsman, of Larson's camp located several miles from here near the Kinzua road, was saved from starvation and death early this morning, when his cries and pounding on the interior of a box car, which was one of the several of a local freight which was about to leave the yard of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for points south.

In an interview with the man this morning he stated that he arrived in Kane on Thursday from the camp and soon after his arrival here he got intoxicated and was so much under the influence of liquor from that time on until he came to his senses in the box car that he did not exactly know what he had been doing or how he got into the car, but it is evident that he wandered into the car unobserved after it was loaded and before it was sealed.

His cries were first heard at 6:30 o'clock this morning, but he said he thought he had come to his senses about two hours previous, and when he realized that he was a prisoner and what his fate might be, he kept up a constant yelling and pounding until heard by a railroad man, who notified the depot office employes and they broke the seal and released him. Officer Swanson was called and took the man to the lock-up where he was kept until noon, when he was released.—Kane Rep.15

OXYGEN ON THE HOOF

A physician whose favorite perscription calls for six miles a day of walking in the open air, or "six miles of oxygen on the hoof", was asked recently why he stressed walking when there were so many other forms of outdoor exercise.

To which he replied that baseball golf, tennis, basket ball, cricket, boxing, wrestling, running, gymnasium work with or without apparatus, and ordinary setting up exercises are all excellent. But they have one or two disadvantages for the ordinary man or woman, they can't be readily practised outdoors every day in the year. Or if they might be, they aren't, for few persons will stick to any such regime. Walking is different in that it is just as suitable to Sundays as week days, it may be taken with or without team mates or friends, it can be pursued in any weather, and with a little forethought, it may be combined with getting to or from one's place of business.

Even walking has one disadvantage in this day of haste. Some persons consider their time too valuable to spend any of it walking. This is a fallacy, says the physician. It may seem to be a luxury, but it is a necessity worth all it costs to anybody.—Erp.

ZR-1, the gigantic naval dirtible, made her first cruise last week, covering 900 miles in eleven and one half hours and using only 500 gallons of gasoline. She had had several tests, but no previous extended flight. The airship, 681 feet long and as big as the largest ocean liners, showed herself to New Yorkers and then visited Philadelphia, hovering over the Navy Yard, which is really her birthplace, since all her parts were made there to be assembled later at Lakehurst. Beautiful in the sunlight was this Jeviathan of the skies, the first of a projected fleet. While prijnarily intended for scout work in war she is nevertheless an object lesson for commerce. Perfectly safe is the ZR-1—or should be—with her non-explosive helium gas. Flights to come should demonstrate this fact and give the public confidence in this method of transportation. Presently, no doubt, we shall be flying in passenger dirtibles running on precise schedules.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM COOLIDGE TO GOVERNOR

President Felicitates Mr. Pinchot on Settlement of Coal Strike in a Message Made Public

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 13—A message of congratulations from President Coolidge to Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania upon the settlement of the anthracite coal controversy here last week, was made public at the executive offices here tonight.

President Coolidge's message was dated from the White House, September 7. It said:

"Please accept my heartiest congratulations on the settlement of the coal controversy. It was a very difficult situation in which I invited your cooperation. Your management of it is a distinct public service. I can not commend it too highly. Certainly there ought to be some method devised for a settlement of disputes of this kind in accordance with principles of justice and fairness to all parties concerned. The constantly recurring danger of lack of adequate fuel supply is of itself a grave criticism of a great industry and an intolerable condition for the public to endure."

Although the message was received last Friday, Mr. Pinchot had declined to make it public until receipt of assurance from the White House that there was no objection to its issuance here. The Governor's explanatory statement which was received at his office here by telephone, said:

"Having received word today from Mr. Slemp that the President expected me to make public his telegram of congratulation I do so with pleasure. At the same time I wish to express again my appreciation of the President's heartiest and welcome message."

For the general interest of the enthusiastic "Radio Fans" of the county the Miner announces that a "Radio Column" will be provided in the near future for programs and up-to-date facts concerning the transmission and reception of radio telephony.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE OLD CIRCLE

THE natural inclination in man, when he is lost in the woods, or is floundering around in business for which he is not qualified, is to move in a circle.

The carrier pigeon flies straight to his destination; the horse goes unguided through the darkest night to his stable.

A man may have genius or merely ordinary talent, but if he cannot move straight ahead, think clearly and keep his mind upon his work, he is plodding around and around, arriving at the end of the year at about the same spot from which he started, still befuddled, and decidedly less courageous.

Such a man, and there are thousands of them, is not built for success. He is apt to take no reckoning of his progress until some one beside him who has been thinking effectively in straight lines moves up to where opportunity is greater and reward is richer.

This rude awakening causes but a temporary shock to his dumb sensibilities, lasting perhaps a day or two, but producing in him no material change for the better.

If any serious doubt as to his ability should come to him at such a time as this, it is instantly banished as too burdensome, and he continues his aimless trot in the old circle.

He doesn't ask himself whether he is dependable, whether he thinks constructively or whether he thinks at all.

He doesn't ask whether he is given to watching the clock and stealing away frequently from his work to inhale the aroma of his favorite cigarette.

He doesn't ask whether he in all his time in his present position has made a single suggestion of value to his employer.

Ah, no! He has the faculty of avoiding dubious obligations, especially those that would be likely to impose upon him an additional stroke of work, or interfere with his plans for pleasure among his night associates.

Such a man is not qualified for straight thinking or straight going. He is not capable of handling things with intelligence and in the depths of his heart he knows it.

He is a failure, and for no other reason in the world than his own perverseness in moving in the old circle—wandering about the best part of his life in the wilderness.

SHOULD HAVE EFFECT OF LESSENING ACCIDENTS

Harrisburg, Sept. 18—The recent order of Highway Commissioner Paul D. Wright prohibiting parking on improved roads, and the order of the state fire marshal's office forbidding the erection of gasoline pumps on any state highway, or within eight feet of an improved road section anywhere will have the effect of lessening accidents, in the opinion of officials who are making a study of Pennsylvania traffic conditions.

"What the authorities should do," said a traffic expert, "is to encourage the installation of roadside telephones on every highway in Pennsylvania, because no matter how strict the regulations may be made there are always present on the road those drivers who disregard all safety measures 'take a chance' and wreck not only themselves but others. The greatest offenders in this particular seem to be drivers from the state of Maryland and in the southern tier of Pennsylvania counties it is hazardous to drive on Sundays because of the apparent ignorance or wilful carelessness of the men from Maryland. On isolated road sections where the highway emergency phones are not installed it is difficult to secure assistance. I know of several instances in which lives have been saved through prompt use of a nearby road telephone, and the State should see that the service is universal in Pennsylvania."

The highway emergency telephone people this week tendered the State Highway Department keys to all telephone boxes on state highways, for use of the motorcycle patrol now being recruited. This patrol will first go into training at Mt. Gretna for about four weeks and it will make its appearance on Pennsylvania highways about the middle of October.

The "No-Parking-on-the-road" rule issued in August by Highway Commissioner Wright is but observed, in some sections of the state. This rule forbids all parking which will "interfere with orderly passage of two-way traffic." It will be rigidly enforced by the new motion patrol.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS CLOSING DAY OF FAIR

Despite the cold weather of Thursday a large crowd gathered at the fair grounds at East Smethport and auspiciously closed McKean county's big fair. A parade of some of the county's best blooded livestock in the afternoon was the closing exhibit of the fair, but multitudes remained at the grounds Thursday night and patronized the many concessions and riding devices.

An athletic program in which boys and girls from all parts of the county took part, was the chief feature of the celebration of "school day" at the fair. High school athletes members of track teams in their school, took advantage of the prize offers in the various track and field events and won honors for themselves.

The remainder of the racing card was run off and prizes awarded. As usual, a large crowd watched with great interest the free attractions offered in front of the grandstand by a troup of clever Japanse acrobats and an act of trained dogs.

In the opinion of officers of the fair association this year's fair has been the most successful held in many years notwithstanding the inclement weather that marred the enterprise last week.

Upholding American Ideals

THE railroad transportation systems of this country have been an important element in making America the greatest nation in the world. The country-wide service provided by these great arteries of commerce has enabled America to maintain its commercial supremacy.

The railroads of America are performing each day and night a vital service—close to the lives of the American people—for whether it be through the transportation of passengers or freight the people are dependent on that service for their very existence.

The prosperity of the railroads means the prosperity of the people and the continuance of the provisions of the Transportation Act of 1920—under which the railroads are recuperating from the effects of war-time operation—is therefore of urgent importance to the people as well as to the railroads.

America's railroads are the finest and most efficiently operated in the world and in supporting them the people of this country are upholding American ideals. The future of our great railroad system is linked closely with the future of America.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Aline Lavergne owns Cypremort, a small plantation in the Louisiana bayous. She leaves the management to John Philbrick, an old retainer and faithful but not a good business man, as Ah Lee, the Manchu, who is trying to help Aline, explains to the Mysterious John Solomon. Aline's uncle David Macarty and his son, Felix, under pretense of looking after her interests, plot to get control of the plantation.

CHAPTER II.—One of their schemes is to dam the bayou and thus dry up her rice fields. Then they try to get rid of Philbrick. Aline suspects the Macartys and consults Jack Fortier, a young lawyer, who takes her case.

CHAPTER III.—He finds a big fight on his hands, for the Macartys are all powerful. They try to bribe him off.

CHAPTER IV.—Then they have him beaten up, but he is rescued by John Solomon.

CHAPTER V.—The Macartys drop open hostilities and invite Fortier and Aline to go on their yacht, the Water-sprite, to inspect the plantation. Solomon has secured the job of steward on the yacht. Just before they sail Aline gets a telegram from Philbrick saying that he is going away for a while and has left the plantation in charge of Captain Wrexham.

CHAPTER VI.—Solomon foils an attempt to steal Fortier's papers. An outlaw named Gros Michel is killed on the yacht and Thompson, the mate, is held for murder, chiefly through the efforts of Solomon, who later confesses to Fortier that he killed the man and gives Fortier the incriminating papers, which Thompson had stolen from the lawyer.

CHAPTER VII.—Captain Wrexham takes charge of the plantation. Rather shady of character, he is prompted to play straight by the effect upon him of a photograph of Aline.

CHAPTER VIII.—Wrexham examines the contents of the safe and finds a package which interests him and which he pockets. Macarty and the sheriff arrive looking for Philbrick whom Macarty charges with murder of a negro. Finding Philbrick gone, Macarty attempts to bribe Wrexham to betray the interests of Aline Lavergne. Wrexham temporizes.

CHAPTER IX.—Wrexham, whose ship is anchored near the plantation, goes out at night on a mysterious errand of his own. Upon his return he finds Ah Lee waiting for him.

CHAPTER X.—Once in the long ago, in the China seas, Wrexham and Ah Lee had met and clashed. The Manchu tells Wrexham that he is deeply interested in protecting Aline and her inheritance. Wrexham tells of blowing up the dam that prevented irrigation of the plantation. In consideration of Wrexham's attempt to preserve Aline's property, Ah Lee spares Wrexham's life, which he had determined to take in revenge for wrongs committed against him long ago.

CHAPTER XI.—Wrexham puzzles over Ah Lee's mysterious references to the "Gemini" and the "Sea-moon." His ship mysteriously disappears and he receives a note indicating that its disappearance is in retaliation for blowing up the dam. Fortier and Solomon come to the plantation. Fortier explains to Wrexham that Solomon wants to "lay low" for awhile and also to reach Ah Lee. Wrexham directs a black boy to take Solomon to Ah Lee.

CHAPTER XII.—Philbrick returns in a drunken condition and tells Wrexham were to find his schooner. Wrexham determines to recover the vessel and leave for eastern waters, taking Philbrick with him to remove him from the temptation of alcoholic drink. He leaves a note for Fortier, telling him his plans, leaving him in charge of the plantation, and departs.

CHAPTER XIV.—The Macartys, it develops, know about the "Gemini" and the "Sea-moon." They are desperate because they do not know where they are hidden.

CHAPTER XV.—Fortier finds Macarty and Petit Jean rummaging about in the library late at night. He puts up a fight, but is overpowered. Felix finds the gems hidden in an old desk. Fortier discovers him in the act of stealing the stones, attempts to recover them, and in a fight with Macarty and his henchman, Jean Hennepin, is worsted, tied up, and conveyed to the Macarty yacht.

CHAPTER IX

Uncle Neb and Aunt Sapphira, who between them had kept the household arrangements of the plantation running like clockwork for unnumbered years, stood on the front gallery and listened rapturously. They were watching the work at the landing, whence the voice of Captain Wrexham came to them with startling clarity.

Aunt Sapphira rolled her eyes. "Sho' is scandalous talk, Uncle Neb! Dat man is got de mos' masterful use o' langwidge what I heerd sence ol' Jedge Lavergne—"

"Hey, Uncle Neb!" broke in a hurried voice, "Cap'n say fotch him a rifle an' shake yo' foot!"

A black boy had run up the walk from the wharf and was panting below the gallery. Uncle Neb caught the message and hastened into the house.

Captain Wrexham was having his troubles. With a dozen half-naked, laughing black men at work, he had brought the Nautilus into the little cove and anchored her bow and stern. He had barely completed this operation, when he discovered that she was aground. The water had gone down swiftly and without warning—Macarty's dam was closed.

The skipper swore and sweated, but in five minutes the schooner was nicely heeled over in the mud; only a tug or a raise of water could float her. It was at this juncture that Wrexham had sent for a rifle.

He stood on the landing, while the black men hastened to get the boats and launches out to where the water would still float them. The wharf was already high and dry. Out midstream in the bayou appeared a launch, floating with the slow current. Captain Wrexham chewed on his cigar and eyed this boat in malignant fury.

The boat carried two men. In the bow stood Felix Macarty, watching the work ashore. At the sudden subsidence of the water, at the grounding of the schooner and Wrexham's storm of curses, Macarty had broken into a wave of hearty laughter. Across the water swept that variolite mirth, more deadly than Wrexham's foulest oaths, stinging the seaman like a whip.

"Laugh at me, will you?" Wrexham

shook his fist in air. "Laugh at my craft, will you?"

And he sent the boy for a rifle.

Perhaps Felix Macarty made a mistake when he laughed thus mockingly. If there were one thing on earth for which Wrexham held a deep and true affection, it was this schooner that now lay heeled in the mud.

This craft was no ordinary trading schooner, lousy with rotten copra, stinking with melted oil in the bilge, her deck unoiled by tropic suns. Not at all! She was a schooner, but a schooner in perfect miniature, incredibly small and perfect to the final detail.

A trader, indeed, yet with rather the look of a yacht. Her brasses were polished, glittering in the sunlight; her paint was scrubbed and gleaming white. Even her furled canvas showed immaculate. Her varnished spars shone against the blue sky like streamers of fobwah.

And now this miniature schooner hung in the mud of a Louisiana bayou, while the man who had tripped her was laughing in shrill mirth to see her crippled!

The black boy, panting, fetched the rifle. Those at work with the boats paused and stared, their eyes rolling. Wrexham took the gun and clicked a cartridge home.

"Laugh, will you?" he roared out, so that his voice lifted and rolled amazingly across the bayou. "Laugh and be d—d! You're not dealing with Philbrick now!"

He lifted the rifle and fired.

With a cry of shrill and startled rage, Felix Macarty leaped upright—the bullet had splintered the wood under his arm. Wrexham threw out the empty shell, clicked another into place, and fired again. Another splinter of wood flew up. Macarty cursed his negro, and his launch swung out and headed away as the power drove her propeller.

Wrexham threw the bolt, lifted the rifle again. His protruding eyes were hard and chill. He sighted on the back of Macarty, and his finger drew on the trigger; then he lowered the rifle and shook his head regretfully.

"No—that's enough. I'll learn you things, d—n you!" He handed the rifle to the waiting boy, then looked down at the men below. "Any of you boys know how to handle that mahogany launch and find the way to Latouche?"

"Yas, suh!" shouted several at once.

"Fill her with gas and get her ready. I'm going to town in ten minutes."

"Sho' will, suh! Yas, suh, cap'n!"

Whoops of eager laughter and loud talking, such as black men use to disguise the strain of tense moments, echoed in the ears of Wrexham as he strode up to the great house.

He had brought ashore some of his things. Now he dressed carefully in fresh whites, shaved, clipped his square brown beard, changed into newly whited shoes. He made sure that he had money and Philbrick's telegram, which was addressed to Fortier. Philbrick had told him about Fortier.

"Some cursed pinny of a lawyer!" thought Wrexham scornfully. "That girl should ha' laid off draggin' a lawyer into this mess."

Informing Uncle Neb that he was going to town for the day, he went to the wharf. The water had ceased to subside. The schooner lay well heeled over, hard and fast aground. Wrexham surveyed her with his lips tightened in a thin line. He beckoned two darkies.

"Carry me over that mud. If you drop me, I'll cut the hearts out of you!"

They grinned at this, picked him up and waded across the glistening new mud to where the launch awaited him. A moment afterward the craft was chugging upstream.

"Up the bayou," directed Wrexham. "I want a look at the dam o' that power company. Then to town."

"Yas, suh."

Wrexham sat motionless, absorbed in the thoughts that gripped him, unseeing this tropic environment. They could not have been altogether pleasant, those thoughts; his eyes were savage.

Perhaps he was taken back to that other day and place, where he had paid a debt to a man by mortgage of his soul to the devil. Perhaps he was thinking of the two men and a woman whom he had once upon a time betrayed, and whose memory haunted him consciously. Or he might have been thinking of other occasions. He did not link things to peep to his mind, this man. He had learned to remember—and, probably, he had much to forget.

There was, for example, that Chinaman of Macassar, whose kris had been looted and buried under Palembang Island. Wrexham had really forgotten this affair, although one or two long-distance threats had followed him from Chuen Ying. It was only an incident, and by far back in his life. Wrexham had never learned even to be afraid.

The launch popped suddenly into a large and open stream, Bayou Lafourche. Here were other boats, horses, men; from somewhere the whistle of a locomotive, bringing first wonder to the eyes of Wrexham, then a laugh. A bend in the stream and Latouche appeared, rapidly growing in size. Ten minutes, and Wrexham tossed his boy a dollar, then strode uptown so much and afoot up business.

After an hour Wrexham went to the railroad station and dispatched Philbrick's telegram to Fortier. This accomplished, he sought the post office and went to the general-delivery window.

"Ordered mail forwarded and held here, from San Francisco," he said. "Capt'n Tom Wrexham, schooner Nautilus."

After a slight delay, he was handed a letter, much marked about, and forwarded, and a curious glance followed him as he turned away.

When he was out in the street, Wrexham examined the letter curiously. It was from a man in Zamboanga in the Philippines, a former partner of Wrexham in many deals, a man whom Wrexham trusted.

The skipper tore at the envelope, bit his fingers, drew a letter, and with it a newspaper clipping. His eyes, widened on this clipping. His sturdy fingers clutched it fiercely, his figure stiffened as he read the words. Astonishment flooded into his face, followed by a flush that might have come from some inward relief or deep pleasure.

"If this ain't a rum go!" he ejaculated with an oath. He lowered the paper and stared blankly before him. "A rum go and no mistake!" the only time in my life I was guilty of havin' a conscience—and now to find it's all been wasted!"

He read the clipping again, incredulous. No, there was no error! The two men and a woman, the three whom he had betrayed, had come to no ill end after all. His remorse had been needless. There was nothing for which to blame himself; his action had resulted in no harm at all. The clipping told him all this.

The wonder of it oppressed Wrexham. The ironic humor of it struck him and evoked a laugh. On the heels of this feeling, a thought: Why had he learned this fact only today? Because, obviously, he had accepted the duty imposed upon him by John Philbrick and the girl's photograph. Because he had sincerely wished to make amends for his former actions.

In a moment, this conviction became deeply and ineradicably imprinted upon Wrexham's mind. It was a vague notion, but it fitted well with his vaguely formulated ideas of an overruling providence and an offended Jehovah. Wrexham was in no sense religious, but he did have beliefs. His canons were Masonic rather than theologic. It was, to him, indubitable that this information had come to him as a reward for what he had undertaken here.

"A rum go and no mistake!" he repeated again, slowly, a trifle awed.

He remembered the letter, and glanced over the writing. It made no reference to the newspaper clipping. It was concerned only with business. There was, however, a postscript:

"P. S. I hear that the chink of Macassar, Chuen Ying, pulled up stakes two or three years ago and vanished."

"They say he went to the States, and I hear he was no chink at all, but a blooded Manchu. If you meet him over there, give him my regards—and look out!"

Chuen Ying! For a moment Wrexham puzzled, before he remembered that burned and looted junk under Palembang Island. Wrexham had really forgotten this affair, although one or two long-distance threats had followed him from Chuen Ying. It was only an incident, and by far back in his life. Wrexham had never learned even to be afraid.

"If this ain't my lucky day!" he reflected. "I'm comin' out all right, I tell you. Now, I'd better buy some stuff and get back home. No time to waste floatin' the schooner and irrigatin' that cursed rice crop. Warm me to irrigate, will you? I'll do it, blast your eyes!"

A furious exultation was upon him for the rest of that day. He could scarcely sit quiet while the launch chugged back home through the bayous.

Immediately he reached the plantation, Wrexham went aboard the schooner, clawed up the steeply inclined deck, and vanished below. He was busied there, alone, until sunset. Then he emerged into sight, yawned and stretched himself, and hailed the bank. A negro in a canoe fetched him ashore.

"Leave this canoe with a paddle in it," said Wrexham. "I want to use it tonight, but I'll do my own paddling."

"Yas, suh, cap'n," came the answer.

Wrexham dined alone that evening. He enjoyed being master of this place, and it was very certain that every one in the place enjoyed having him for master.

Darkness had fallen when Wrexham called Uncle Neb to the library, and stated that he was going out. He demanded a dark coat, which Uncle Neb produced. With this, he left the house and started for the bayou.

Two hours later he returned. He was met by Uncle Neb, who was excited and nervous.

"Cap'n, boss, dere's been a gen'l'man here two times an' he foun' out," said the old darky. "He Mistah Philbrick, sah, he say he said he was to come—nothin' 'bout me, but I reckon—"

"Eh?" said Wrexham, coming into the hall from the gallery. "Some one here, you say?"

"Yas' suh—Mistah Ah Lee. He's settin' in dere right now. Oh, my lawd, cap'n, boss! Why, suh, dem elegant white pants is all wet up to—"

Wrexham, in fact, was soaking wet to the waist, and stained with mud. He glanced down at himself, and laughed.

"Ah Lee—that's the man, eh?"

"Dat's him, sah. I done tol' him to set an' wait—"

"Quite right, Uncle Neb. I'll change my clothes and be right down."

Wrexham got into dry clothes, which he arranged. He set out fresh clothes, and laughed softly to himself as he changed. Once he glanced at his watch, as though expecting something. Then he shook his head.

"Not yet—a good fifteen minutes yet," he muttered. "I wonder if Macarty sent Ah Lee chasing to see me? Wants me to run, some liquor, or maybe some beer, for him. That'd be a cute trap to catch Tom Wrexham in, wouldn't it? Hum! After the news I got today, the whole bunch can roast in hell!"

He broke into a cheery, albeit tuneless, whistle—a most singular thing for Wrexham. Yet, why not? This day he had received great news. He was a happy man. The load that had weighted his mind was gone. He went down to the library feeling that twenty years had slipped from him. He felt quite peppery for any game.

In this mood he stepped into the library. He came face to face with the man who rose to greet him. Wrexham stopped dead still.

In the candlelight, his face went absolutely livid. His hand slipped to his pocket and found that he had left his pistol upstairs. He drew a breath and stood waiting, expectant, as though he were facing death.

"Good evening," said the yellow man quietly. "You did not expect to see me, captain?"

"I—I expected Ah Lee," murmured Wrexham. His voice was hollow and dead.

"I am Ah Lee," said the other. The wrinkled yellow face smiled. "Also I am—or was—Chuen Ying of Macassar. I have hoped to see you for several years. Shall we sit down?"

To be continued next week.

NEW YORK BOASTS TITLE OF WORLD'S "TALKINGEST" CITY

With more than 1,000,000 telephone instruments and more than 5,000,000 daily telephone calls, New York City has been appropriately dubbed "the talkingest city on the globe." By 1928, it is estimated there will be 1,725,000 telephones in the metropolis, or nearly 2,000,000, an increase of about 75 per cent, a really colossal figure considering there were only 67,000 in 1900 and 813,000 in 1915.

NO GREEN PAPER ENVELOPES

Ban Placed on Them by Official of the Post Office Department Is to Stand.

American business men frequently run up against some federal regulation or other which temporarily vexes them because they feel that it is a governmental infringement upon their way of doing business, even though the matter is generally trivial. They do not realize that oftentimes this regulation is for their own advantage or in the interest of human welfare.

A good illustration of this has just been found by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce and the Post Office department, and the explanation has caused the business concerns interested to agree most heartily that the federal regulation should stand.

This illustration was with regard to the use of green paper in "window envelopes," which are now extensively utilized by American business houses.

A circular, issued last January by the office of the third assistant postmaster general, says that "the stationery used in window envelopes, or at least that portion upon which the address appears, must be white or, if colored, of a very light tint or shade. The use of dark-colored stationery is not permissible."

The rules and regulations division of the Post Office department states that "green is probably the most difficult color for the mail distributors to handle under the trying conditions under which they have to work."

CLARENCE DALY WRITES

I would have missed it if I had not met this fellow and am sure glad I did.

The young ladies who were from Salt Lake City wanted us to go to the dance that night. The other fellow didn't dance and neather does Rogsdale so I had three on my hands. They played about 14 dances and I never missed one.

It was after midnight when I got in bed and then it was so cold that I didn't sleep very good. The altitude is about 8000 feet and it sure gets cold. I advise anyone that goes to the Yellow Stone to take a heavy suit of B. V. D's. with them.

The next morning we completed the loop. We saw the Yellow Stone Lake which is the most beautiful body of water I ever laid eyes on. The Grand Canion and Great Falls were next and Miss Tretton didn't teach me enough adjectives to describe their beauty and grandeur. The Falls impressed me much more than Niagara though not as large. I couldn't have spent a whole day here but couldn't get Rogsdale to stay.

We cut across to the west entrance and as Rogsdale said he wouldn't freeze another night we descended down the Mountains amidst beautiful scenery to somewhere in Idaho.".

I saw six bears and five deer and got pictures of all but the deer.

I had to write this while it was fresh on my mind but can hardly hold my eyes open any longer. Maybe you and the rest will enjoy this, but you ought to see it yourself. Life is too short to miss such things.

Give my best to all.

As ever,

Clarence.

Boys' Stock-Judging Contest.

Feature events of the week were stock judging contats for boys under twelve years of age. Thirty-four farmer lads competed for the five prizes offered to the best judge of general livestock, and for the silver cup offered by Group No. 7, Bankers' Association of Northwestern Pennsylvania. The first and second prizes of $25 and $15 respectively were offered as special premiums by the above mentioned McKean County Banks. The prize-winners of the contest were: First, Leonard Olson, Smethport, Average 95 2-3, prize $25; Second, Ralph Mitchell, Port Alegany, Average 93, prize $15; third, Walter Kleisath, Smethport, Average 92, prize, choice of any farm paper, fourth, Mark Skinner, Eldred, average 89 2-3, prize, choice of any farm paper; fifth, George Pole, Minard Run, average 85 1-3, prize choice of any farm paper. The silver cup awarded to the best judge of dairy cows went to Franklyn Baxter, Port Allegany. Baxter's average was 95 per cent.

REV. MR. GREGSON ROTARY CLUB SPEAKER.

The Rev. Arthur Gregson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Smethport, was the guest of the Rotary club at its weekly luncheon Monday and gave a most instructive and eloquent address on the English Labor situation. Rev. Gregson is a native of England, having been born and reaged in that country and grew up with the labor movement in England.

His address was historical, dealing with the origin of the labor movement, its development step by step, its prominence and influence in England during the last half century. He distignished between trades-unionism and communism. The English situation is different from the American situation in that it is English, while in America there are forces at work which are foreign to America and to the spirit and purpose of trades-unionism.

The speaker was distinctly in favor of trades-unionism as a movement and claimed that, through it the working classes had helped not only themselves but capital and the general public a swell. The danger of the movement in America is not organized labor as such, but the danger of radicalism and communism.

At the close of Mr. Gregson's address many questions were asked and general discussion. J. E. Henretta made a few very appropriate remarks on the Constitution of the United States, saying that this was "Constitutional week" in International Rotary.—Kane Republican, Sept. 17.

MT. JEWETT WAS SCENE OF A RAID

The restaurant of S. J. Clink at Mt. Jewett was raided Saturday afternoon by County Detective J. J. Allison and two state troopers. While the officers did not capture the proprietor of the place it is reported that they found sixty or more quarts of intoxicating liquors in bottles and jugs. It is also reported today that the wife of the proprietor of the restaurant was placed under arrest, given a hearing at Smethport and released upon furnishing bail.—Kane Republican.

Reduced Railroad Fares

Substantial reductions in railroad fares have been granted to those going to the National Dairy exposition on the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., October 5-13. All of New York state, a large part of Pennsylvania and some of New Jersey is included in a territory in which a fare and a half is granted for the round trip, without necessity of securing a certificate. All other parts of the United States and Eastern Canada are granted a fare and a half, but visitors to the exposition must secure certificates, which will be given at stations where tickets are purchased. They will be stamped on the grounds and will mean a saving of 50 per cent in the return fare.

Government Exhibit at National Dairy Show a Big feature

Many Important, Instructive and Interesting Dairying Problems Will be Covered.

"Don't miss the great $30,000 exhibit by the United States department of agriculture at the National Dairy Show on the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., October 5-13," is the word that comes from dairy leaders at Washington.

The main feature of the exhibit will show the development of a dairy farm from its primitive state to its final high stage of development. Various steps in improvement of the farm, animals and equipment are brought out in three large life-like representations of the same farm, at different periods.

Methods of dairy management which made it possible for the farm to reach its high state of efficiency, are shown very clearly in detail, besides presenting a great deal of information on the best dairy practices, the feature has a historical aspect in that the progress of American dairying with respect to farm, animals, equipment, dairy machinery and methods of production and marketing are depicted.

Almost every dairy farm has pasture. In fact, pasture furnishes one-third of all the feed consumed by domestic animals. How to maintain and improve pastures is the subject of another exhibit which shows also why it is important to pasture close.

Then there is the story of silage. Here is shown when to cut corn to make the best silage and also samples of less familiar silages made from various crops, such as corn and alfalfa, sweet clover, soy beans, sunflowers, sorghum and corn and soy beans.

There will be exhibits on breeding which dairy leaders say no farmer can afford to miss. How to obtain the use of a good purebred bull at a very small fraction of his worth to each dairyman is one of the stories told in these exhibits. Another one shows why the bull is so important in increasing the production of the herd, and why it is so necessary to use proved bulls.

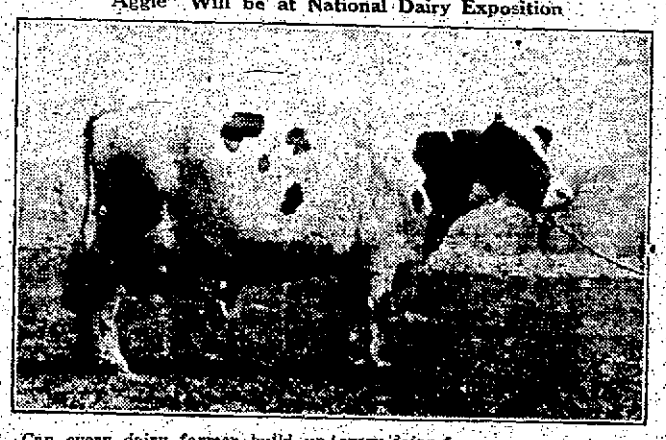
How to increase profits from the herd by testing the milk and butterfat production and food consumption of each cow is still another important subject which will be presented.

Boys and Girls Compete in Judging Contests

Farm boys and girls from 20 states will compete in judging and demonstration contests at the National Dairy exposition on the New York state fair grounds at Syracuse, from October 5 to 13. In addition, scores of boy and girl calf club members will enter calves in competition for ribbons and medals.

The judging and demonstration work will be by selected teams of three junior projeit members each, sent from the various states. Gold watches, medals and other prizes are offered in these events.

"Aggie" Will be at National Dairy Exposition



Can every dairy farmer build up his herd so that it contains cows like "Aggie," the famous grade owned by S. W. Barber of Scottsburg, Livingston county, N. Y., who promises to yield 30,000 pounds of milk this year?

W. E. Skinner, general manager of the National Dairy exposition, which will be held this year on the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., October 5-13, declares the answer to the question is an emphatic "yes" and promises that the methods used by Mr. Barber in developing "Aggie" will be shown in detail at the exposition, so they can be adopted on his farm by every dairy farmer.

"Aggie" made a profit of $348.09 for Mr. Barber last year, after deducting all costs for feed and labor. Her record established in a cow-testing association was 25,295.3 pounds of milk and 1,129.4 pounds of butterfat in a year.

Mr. Barber has expressed his willingness to exhibit "Aggie" at the exposition, giving visitors an opportunity to see the cow which promises, from her record and type, to be acclaimed the champion grade cow of the country by the judges, in competition with other grades from ten or a dozen other states.

Valuable Methods To Be Demonstrated at Big Dairy Show

Importance and Value of Proper Testing Will be Stressed—Production Increase at Decreased Cost.

Methods worth thousands of dollars to dairy farmers in the east will be demonstrated by various organizations at the National Dairy Show on the fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., October 5-13. Ideas will be shown that can be adopted with profit on every farm without an outlay too heavy to make them practical.

Increased production of the dairy farmer's herd and a decrease in the cost of keeping the herd is the answer to the problem of securing better profits, according to officials of the exposition. The exhibits prepared have been worked out with this view in mind, and every one of them will be devoted to showing the dairy farmer how he can maintain his herd more cheaply and at the same time secure a bigger milk yield.

Every phase of dairy farming will be taken up. Exhibits, methods of feeding for the best results in different parts of the country, emphasizing in the main the practice of growing as much feed as possible on the farm; how to produce the cleanest and most sanitary milk; how to keep accounts showing exactly what profits from the herd amount to.

One of the most important will stress the value of working through a cowtesting association so that an absolute check can be placed on the cows in a herd. By means of records showing each animal's production, the butterfat content in its milk and how much it costs to feed it, it is possible to tell just how profitable to the farmer each cow is.

With this knowledge it is possible to sell the "boarder" or cull cows for beef and keep the ones that show a profit. Then by use of a good, purebred bull, it is possible to grade up the herd so that daughters of the sire are better producers than their dams, in this way insuring a herd constantly improving in profitable production. A complete exhibit will show how individual farmers can secure the use of a purebred bull of proven merit, an important factor, at a minimum of expense.

Adoption of these methods by the farmer, it is demonstrated, do not cost a fraction of their value when the increased efficiency and profit on the farm is considered.

If there is any problem the dairy farmer has found difficulty in solving, if there is any question he wants to have answered correctly and satisfactorily, he will find it taken up in detail at the National Dairy Show, according to W. E. Skinner, manager, who points out the exposition is held for the express purpose of helping dairy farmers by bringing together all of the best ideas and methods worked out in any art of the country.

In addition, visitors will have an unexcelled opportunity to see the very best purebred and grade cattle in the country in competition for dairy show ribbons. A ribbon awarded at the exposition is as much a stamp of excellence to the animal winning it as the word, "sterling," is on silver.

There will be exhibits worth several millions of dollars of machinery and equipment for use on the dairy farm and in the dairy factory.

Special Days For Special Breeds

Come to the National Dairy exposition on the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., October 5-13, on the days when the cattle in which you are most interested will be judged by the country's best critics of the fine points of dairy animals, is the message of W. E. Skinner, general manager, to dairy farmers. Following is a schedule of judging days:

Holsteins, October 8 and 9.
Jerseys, October 9 and 10.
Ayrshires and Brown Swiss, October 10 and 11.
Guernseys, October 11 and 12.

"Drink More Milk" Slogan Will Be Emphasized at Show

Real Value of Milk as a Food Will be Subject of Carefully Worked Out Exhibit.

The great health slogan, "Drink more milk," will be emphasized at the National Dairy exposition on the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., October 5-13, in one of the finest and most interesting exhibits ever prepared for any fair or show in the United States.

Its importance is shown by a statement by M. D. Munn, president of the National Dairy Council, which is organized for the purpose of increasing use of milk, that if everyone in the country consumed just one more tablespoonful of milk every week, the great surplus which makes such a problem for the dairy farmer would be entirely used up.

The display will be worked out carefully so that every feature will bring out some great truth about the value and importance of milk as a food. The fact that milk contains quantities of vitamines which are absolutely essential to growth of bone, muscle and tissue will be emphasized on every hand. It is believed the display will stimulate the use of milk in the east substantially.

The best artists in the country have been secured to make the big building in which the exhibit will be housed assume the appearance of a modern fairyland. Bright, gleaming lights, attractive grottos, tableaus and other features will be of unusual interest to young and old alike and over all will be the dominating note bringing out forcefully the importance of using plenty of milk.

Many of the largest human welfare organizations in the country are cooperating in the work. Leaders in the department of home economics at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, officials of the American Child Health association, the National Dairy council, Syracuse women's organizations and other groups are working together to make the display the most extensive and effective ever arranged.

With the value of milk as food established, the exhibits will point out that at present an average of 20 cents of every dollar spent for food goes for milk and dairy products; that at least 44 cents of every food dollar should be spent for products of the dairy cow if the proper diet for health is to be secured.

The ultimate increase in the use of milk to this amount would increase the demand for the dairy farmer's product more than 100 per cent, it is pointed out.
